Forecast for Saturday 18 Nov 2023

Weather: Persistent rain overnight, heavy at times. The rain becoming lighter and drizzly in nature in the morning then drier with a few passing showers in the afternoon, some of these could turn heavy and possibly thundery in the evening. A few bright intervals in the afternoon, mainly in the east.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: Almost nil chance overnight and through the morning, improving to 40% in afternoon, best in east.

Low cloud and visibility: Extensive low cloud and fog down to low slopes overnight and during the morning giving difficult navigation conditions. Cloud lifting in the afternoon but still rather persistent above 500m over western and central fells. Visibility improving but some brief reductions in showers.
